NEW QUESTION: 4

Which of the following methods is based on the user's roles and responsibilities?

A. System access control

B. Discretionary access control

C. Mandatory access control

D. Role-based access control

Answer: D

Explanation:

Role-based access control method is based on the user's roles and responsibilities. Role-based access control (RBAC) is an access control model. In this model, a user can access resources according to his role in the organization. For example, a backup administrator is responsible for taking backups of important data. Therefore, he is only authorized to access this data for backing it up. However, sometimes users with different roles need to access the same resources. This situation can also be handled using the RBAC model. Answer option D is incorrect. Discretionary access control (DAC) is an access policy determined by the owner of an object. The owner decides who should be allowed to access the object and what privileges they should have. Answer option A is incorrect. Mandatory access control uses security label system. Answer option B is incorrect. There is no access control method such as System access control.
