NEW QUESTION: 2

When a client who is 25 years of age asks the nurse when she should seek fertility counseling, the best response by the nurse is:

- A. "Fertility counseling should be sought when you have not been able to conceive after 6-9 months of unprotected intercourse."
- B. "We can give you some guidance now on how to increase your chances of conceiving and then refer you if it doesn't happen within a year."

C. "Fertility counseling should be sought when you have been unable to conceive after 1 year of unprotected intercourse."

D. "The average time it takes someone your age to conceive is 512 months, so if you haven't conceived by then, we can refer you."

Answer: B

Explanation:

The guidelines for a fertility workup are to refer after the couple has not conceived after one year of unprotected intercourse. So, Choice 1 is technically correct, but it doesn't consider the immediate need for the couple to have some counseling. Choice 4 is the best answer because it gives the couple guidance now and the referral at the appropriate time. If the woman is over the age of 35, an earlier referral, at six to nine months of unprotected intercourse, is appropriate. It is true that the average time it takes a 25-year-old woman to conceive is 5.3 months, but that does not address the concern the client is expressing. Choice 4 is still the most caring and correct answer. Couples conceive within the first month of unprotected intercourse 20% of the time. Health Promotion and Maintenance
