NEW QUESTION: 2

A customer's security team requires the logging of all network access attempts to Amazon EC2 instances in their production VPC on AWS. Which configuration will meet the security team's requirement?

A. Enable CloudTrail for the production VPC.

B. Enable both CloudTrail and VPC Flow Logs for the AWS account.

C. Enable VPC Flow Logs for the production VPC.

D. Enable both CloudTrail and VPC Flow Logs for the production VPC.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Explanation: Amazon VPC provides features that you can use to increase and monitor the security for your VPC:

- * Security groups - Act as a firewall for associated Amazon EC2 instances, controlling both inbound and outbound traffic at the instance level

- * Network access control lists (ACLs) - Act as a firewall for associated subnets, controlling both inbound and outbound traffic at the subnet level

- * Flow logs - Capture information about the IP traffic going to and from network interfaces in your VPC. When you launch an instance in a VPC, you can associate one or more security groups that you've created. Each instance in your VPC could belong to a different set of security groups. If you don't specify a security group when you launch an instance, the instance automatically belongs to the default security group for the VPC. For more information about security groups, see Security Groups for Your VPC. You can secure your VPC instances using only security groups; however, you can add network ACLs as a second layer of defense. For more information about network ACLs, see Network ACLs.

You can monitor the accepted and rejected IP traffic going to and from your instances by creating a flow log for a VPC, subnet, or individual network interface. Flow log data is published to CloudWatch Logs, and can help you diagnose overly restrictive or overly permissive security group and network ACL rules. For more information, see VPC Flow Logs.

You can use AWS Identity and Access Management to control who in your organization has permission to create and manage security groups, network ACLs and flow logs. For example, you can give only your network administrators that permission, but not personnel who only need to launch instances. For more information, see Controlling Access to Amazon VPC Resources. Amazon security groups and network ACLs don't filter traffic to or from link-local addresses (169.254.0.0/16) or AWS-reserved IPv4 addresses-these are the first four IPv4 addresses of the subnet (including the Amazon DNS server address for the VPC). Similarly, flow logs do not capture IP traffic to or from these addresses. These addresses support the services: Domain Name Services (DNS), Dynamic Host Configuration Protocol (DHCP), Amazon EC2 instance metadata, Key Management Server (KMS-license management for Windows instances), and routing in the subnet. You can implement additional firewall solutions in your instances to block network communication with link-local addresses.
