NEW QUESTION: 3

You set up a bastion host in your VCN to only allow your IP address (140.19.2.140) to establish SSH connections to your

Compute instances that are deployed private subnet. The Compute instances have an attached Network Security Group with a Source Type: Network security Group (NSG) , Source NSG: -050504. To secure the bastion host, you added the following ingress rules to its Network Security Group:

However, after checking the bastion host logs, you discovered that there are IP addresses other than your own that can access your bastion host.

What is the root cause of this issue?

- A. The Security List allows access to all IP address which overrides the Network Security Group ingress rules.
- B. A netmask of /32 allows all IP address in the 140.19.2.0 network, other than your IP 110.19.2.140
- C. The port 22 provides unrestricted access to 140.19.2.140 and to other IP address
- D. All compute instances associated with NSG-050504 are also able to connect to the bastion host.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Explanation

As per security rules that allow ssh on port 22 and source will be NSG-050504, so any compute instance that attached to this NSG will able to access the bastion host as it includes in the same NSG

NEW QUESTION: 4

DRAG DROP

Note: This question is part of a series of questions that use the same scenario. For your convenience, the scenario is repeated in each question. Each question presents a different goal and answer choices, but the text of the scenario is exactly the same in each question in this series.

Start of repeated scenario

You have a database that contains the tables shown in the exhibit. (Click the Exhibit button.)

You review the Employee table and make the following observations:

- Every record has a value in the ManagerID except for the Chief Executive Officer (CEO).
- The FirstName and MiddleName columns contain null values for some records.
- The valid values for the Title column are Sales Representative manager, and CEO.

You review the SalesSummary table and make the following observations:

- The ProductCode column contains two parts: The first five digits represent a product code, and the last seven digits represent the unit price. The unit price uses the following pattern: ####.##.

- You observe that for many records, the unit price portion of the ProductCode column contains values.
- The RegionCode column contains NULL for some records.
- Sales data is only recorded for sales representatives.

You are developing a series of reports and procedures to support the business. Details for each report or procedure follow.

Sales Summary report: This report aggregates data by year and quarter. The report must resemble the following table.

Sales Manager report: This report lists each sales manager and the total sales amount for all employees that report to the sales manager.

Sales by Region report: This report lists the total sales amount by employee and by region.

The report must include the following columns: EmployeeCode, MiddleName, LastName, RegionCode, and SalesAmount. If MiddleName is NULL, FirstName must be displayed. If both FirstName and MiddleName have null values, the word Unknown must be displayed/

If RegionCode is NULL, the word Unknown must be displayed.

Report1: This report joins data from SalesSummary with the Employee table and other tables. You plan to create an object to support Report1. The object has the following requirements:

- be joinable with the SELECT statement that supplies data for the report

- can be used multiple times with the SELECT statement for the report

- be usable only with the SELECT statement for the report

- not be saved as a permanent object

Report2: This report joins data from SalesSummary with the Employee table and other tables.

You plan to create an object to support Report1. The object has the following requirements:

Sales Hierarchy report. This report aggregates rows, creates subtotal rows, and super-aggregates rows over the SalesAmount column in a single result-set. The report uses SaleYear, SaleQuarter, and SaleMonth as a hierarchy. The result set must not contain a grand total or cross-tabulation aggregate rows.

Current Price Stored Procedure: This stored procedure must return the unit price for a product when a product code is supplied. The unit price must include a dollar sign at the beginning. In addition, the unit price must contain a comma every three digits to the left of the decimal point, and must display two digits to the left of the decimal point. The stored procedure must not throw errors, even if the product code contains invalid data.

End of Repeated Scenario

You are creating the queries for Report1 and Report2.

You need to create the objects necessary to support the queries.

Which object should you use to join the SalesSummary table with the other tables that each report uses? To answer, drag the appropriate objects to the correct reports. Each object may be used once, more than once, or not at all. You may need to drag the split bar between panes or scroll to view content.

Explanation:

Box 1: common table expression (CTE)

A common table expression (CTE) can be thought of as a temporary result set that is defined within the execution scope of a single SELECT, INSERT, UPDATE, DELETE, or CREATE VIEW statement. A CTE is similar to a derived table in that it is not stored as an object and lasts only for the duration of the query. Unlike a derived table, a CTE can be self-referencing and can be referenced multiple times in the same query.

A CTE can be used to:

From Scenario: Report1: This report joins data from SalesSummary with the Employee table and other tables. You plan to create an object to support Report1. The object has the following requirements:

Box 2: view

From scenario: Report2: This report joins data from SalesSummary with the Employee table and other tables. You plan to create an object to support Report1. The object has the following requirements:
