If you try to recover the password on a sensor on which password recovery is disabled, the process proceeds with no errors or warnings; however, the password is not reset. If you cannot log in to the sensor because you have forgotten the password, and password recovery is set to disabled, you must reimage your sensor.

You have the ability to disable password recovery if required (it is enabled by default). Follow these steps to disable password recovery from the CLI:

Step 1. Log in to the CLI using administrative privileges.

Step 2. Enter global configuration mode followed by host mode:

sensor# configure terminal

sensor(config)# service host

Step 3. Disable password recovery:

sensor(config-host)# password-recovery disallowed

Note: If an admin/user tries to recover the password on a sensor that is disabled, the process proceeds with no errors or warnings; however, the password is not reset.
